

Be true

to you.

Being true to yourself means seeking an environment that challenges you. Friends who support you. And the kinds of opportunities and experiences that let you shine your light on the world.

“Be who God meant you to be, and you will set the world on fire.”

So said Saint Catherine of Siena, our patron saint, and we couldn't agree more.

It's true. Our students are really “out there.”

As in, they're visiting Chinese silk galleries in Carmel, classifying marine species along the shores of Monterey Bay, even developing predictive tools to prevent wildfire spread. This is powerfully active learning. At its hands-on, heart-felt best.

Leadership skills are in our DNA. An all-girls environment sends a clear message: there's nothing Catalina students can't do. Every resource (and all opportunities) are geared toward girls.

TEDxSantaCatalinaSchool. Every year, Catalina students work to organize and host a TEDx event. From choosing the topic to bringing in experts to handling production, it's entirely student-run.

“Our students are having experiences that mimic what they will do in college, but they're doing it with so much support. And with a soft place to land.”

Catalina's robotics team, Nuns-n-Bolts, regularly takes part in statewide competitions. And unlike a coed team, where too often the boys are doing the work and the girls are holding the clipboard, Catalina students are responsible for everything from design to testing to engineering.

“I love that we have a boarding program. You get to be around people from all different backgrounds and hear so many different viewpoints. It’s unique.”

Finding true sisterhood.

It’s one of the best things about Catalina. It’s also just what happens naturally when you bring together a group of multitalented, multifaceted young women, all of whom want to lift each other up. As a day student, you’ll join an incredibly supportive, globally minded community of students from around the country and around the world.

Ring Week. This is when the Catalina spirit of sisterhood truly gets to shine. Ring Week is three straight days of costumes, scavenger hunts, and entertainment, all topped off by a final dinner. And then, the big moment: senior Ring Sisters present juniors with class rings.

Peers make the best mentors. There’s no strict segmentation by grade here; instead, students of all ages regularly get to interact and develop interclass relationships, with older students serving as guides and mentors.

Teachers who do more than teach. They’re there for you, whether you need academic support or just want to grab a coffee. Or walk around campus and chat about life.
